

ABSTRACT

A system with a set of modules having synchronized timing. The synchronized timing of the modules enables precise coordination of measurements 5 and stimuli for an arbitrary number of modules. The modules communicate and maintain time synchronization using a communication mechanism that may be adapted to localized positioning of modules and/or widely dispersed positioning of modules with no change to 10 the underlying functionality in the modules.